Pabst was born in 1903 in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. He studied art at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago, and he later attended the Hans Hofmann School of Fine Arts in New York City. In the 1940s, Pabst emerged as a leading figure in the abstract expressionist movement. His work of this period is characterized by its use of bold colors and gestural brushwork. Pabst's paintings from this period are often seen as a reflection of his own personal experiences, and they often convey a sense of anxiety and despair.

In the 1950s, Pabst's work began to shift towards a more figurative style. He continued to use bold colors, but his brushwork became more controlled and his compositions became more structured. Pabst's paintings from this period often depict scenes from everyday life, and they often have a sense of humor and irony. Pabst's work from the 1960s and 1970s is often seen as a reflection of his own personal experiences, and it often conveys a sense of optimism and hope.

Pabst died in 1980 at the age of 77. He is considered one of the most important and influential artists of the 20th century, and his work continues to be exhibited in museums and galleries around the world.

Pabst: An Excavation of Art is a stunning and comprehensive monograph on the work of the legendary American artist. This lavishly illustrated volume features hundreds of Pabst's iconic works, from his early abstract expressionist paintings to his later, more figurative works. Pabst: An Excavation of Art is an essential addition to the library of any art lover or collector.
